agement" by D.A.P. Datta, G.S. Raman and P.J. Nagpal "Karyakartika is an essential unit of the Indian culture." (Gopal) I went with my husband and family to the 'karyakartike' centre as per my brother and sister's invitation. We walked into the place where we first met. A few people from the community sat beside me, and I sat at the back of the room and listened to the discussion on audio holographic communication. A video of another person's speech was played to me at the beginning of the talk. "This is the audio holographic medium, which can be linked by all other mediums besides TV," said the speaker. "It has been invented that way because all other media devices can neither make contact with reality, but can only communicate with their user. This means that even when they have their eyes closed, they are aware of what is happening in the physical world." According to the speaker, "the holography has an extremely powerful impact." "This technology has become extremely useful in the military and law enforcement for interrogating suspects who might be trying to escape into the dark web." One guy in the room was discussing the advantages of holo for him and his family. "A holo is an audio hologram (or a radio or a video chat link)," said one of the people in the room. "In the context of these tools you can communicate and meet, you simply can't do it without video." Someone in the room said that audio holograms only work with humans. "When you are with a human you can hear everything she says or does. So when you listen to someone's voice, they can be a good witness against you." Someone else in the room told us that as holograms are linked to everything else, they actually have "a huge impact in other things too". It is therefore important to make sure that we are using holo-enabled devices with our own senses. At one point in the talk, an Indian journalist asked an Indian lawyer from Kolkata whether there were any rules on audio holography, whether it can be used as a method to get information. He answered that in terms of laws there are none and said that he had no idea how such a thing would be possible as it is illegal in India. Later that evening I walked with my father to buy a pair of earmuffs for our daughter.
